

In the past the sides of heat exchangers were complex to make because of the need for different types of holes.

Structurally there is the need for both strength and reduced weight.

Now the flexible system with shears that can cut up to a length of 14m and to a thickness of 12mm, and a press 14m long mean a significant reduction in costs.

{phocagallery view=category|categoryid=13|imageshadow=shadow1|displaybuttons=1}